THE CASE

Base Power announced on 3 August that it had raised a $1B Series D at a $13B post-money valuation, led by Ribbit, Addition, Valor Equity Partners and JPMorganChase's Strategic Investment Group, with Altimeter, Coatue and others alongside. It follows a $1B Series C led by Addition in October 2025 at $4B and a $200M Series B in April 2025; the company says it has raised more than $2.5B. The same release launched Base Core, a 39.2 kWh home battery in production at Base Factory 1 in Austin, with proceeds going to national expansion.

The model is the story: Base sells homeowners a cheap battery and cheap electricity, then dispatches thousands of batteries into the ERCOT market as a virtual power plant. Utilities now buy it wholesale, with CoServ signing for 100 MW across North Texas in March 2026, and Illinois opened on 24 June in ComEd territory. The all-electric championship arrives in Base's own city in February, with the money for a national launch already in the bank.

WHY NOW

The round closed on 3 August and the money is earmarked for expansion beyond Texas and Illinois. Formula E's GEN4 era opens in Jeddah on 18 December, and the Austin E-Prix on 6 February 2027 is a home race in Base's own city; teams finalise Season 13 rosters this autumn.

BOTTOM LINE

A $1B round at $13B, more than $2.5B raised, a factory-built product to launch nationally and a home race in Austin on 6 February 2027 put Base Power at peak brand-investment authority. Andretti's energy lane is open and both US rounds fall inside the window.

WHY ANDRETTI FORMULA E

Andretti Formula E is the American team, owned by TWG Motorsports, whose parent TWG Global also fields the Cadillac F1 Team. Its roster is TWG AI as primary partner, Quest Global, Crowe UK and Reflo, with Nissan supplying the GEN4 powertrain from Season 13; there is no energy, battery or utility partner. Austin on 6 February and Miami on 20 February 2027 give Base two home-market weekends in a fortnight, and a route to F1 later under the same owner.

VALUE TO ANDRETTI FORMULA E — MODE B (TECH SERVES THE TEAM OPERATION)

MODE B - halo with concrete mechanics. Base Core units powering the team's Austin and Miami hospitality and fan zone; a member-acquisition offer for ERCOT and ComEd households carried on the car and in team content; a grid-resilience story Andretti can tell on camera in Texas. In return Andretti gains an American consumer brand at the first US rounds, a utility and policy guest list, and a partner in the grid's emptiest category.

DEAL ARCHITECTURE

Entry as Official Energy Partner. THREE YEARS, Season 13 to Season 15, covering the national roll-out and a probable listing window. Estimated $2-3M a year, with the Austin and Miami activations budgeted separately. Scope: livery and race-suit placement, naming of the home-race hospitality, Base Core demonstrations, driver content for the Texas and Illinois markets, a route to the Cadillac F1 Team through TWG.

PRIMARY DECISION-MAKER

Zach Dell
CO-FOUNDER & CEO, BASE POWER · VERIFIED

Dell co-founded Base in Austin in 2023 after Blackstone and Thrive Capital and fronts every raise; a first sports partnership is his call. Path: Justin Lopas, Co-Founder and COO (ex-SpaceX, Anduril), and Zina Bash, Chief Legal Officer since January 2026. No chief marketing officer is listed.

OPENING ANGLE

Lead with the home race.

“Zach, the Austin E-Prix is on 6 February and Andretti's roster has no energy partner. You just raised $1B to take Base national, and the all-electric series lands in your city first. 25 minutes to see the numbers?”

RISKS & COUNTERS

HALO, NOT WORKSTREAM A residential battery is not a product the team runs; the partnership lives on activation, not engineering. Counter: Anchor it on the Austin and Miami weekends and the open category; keep the ask at team-partner level.

TWO-STATE FOOTPRINT Base sells in Texas and Illinois only; most of the calendar is outside its market. Counter: Price the deal on the two US rounds and the content programme, and time expansion announcements to the season.
